Greyhounds are in general a beautiful relaxed dog by nature. It is not necessary to muzzle them. It's man's hunger for cruelty and blood that forces the hand of muzzling in order to watch the dogs chase hares and rabbits.
It should be Stopped.

Greyhounds are amongst the most gentle, docile and sweetest dogs on earth. There is no need to legally require that they be muzzled. This is a misguided and archaic law that does absolutely no good, but much harm. We have adopted 13 ex-racing greyhounds through the years and have never muzzled a single one, nor had any problems.

Please stop the muzzling of greyhound dogs. These dogs are gentle and kind and need kinder, more humane treatment by us. In fact, I would strongly support discontinuing all dog and horse racing events due to the cruel and abusive practices that often take place in the facilities and by the owners of these animals.

In Toronto, On. Canada greyhounds are in great demand and there are huge amounts of them walked on our busy streets.

None of these animals wear muzzles.

I have not heard of any problems with these dogs, in fact I have my name down to share my life with two of them.

Please get rid of muzzles for these dogs, many have already suffered enough being used in racing for the enjoyment of humans.

I support the removal of this law for companion pet greyhounds for the following reasons:

2. The RSPCA have found no evidence to suggest that greyhounds as a breed pose any greater risk than other dog breeds
3. Western Australia, South Australia and Tasmania are the only Australian states still with this law. All other states (VIC, NSW, QLD, ACT, NT) have removed this law
4. The view supported by veterinary behaviourists is that the behaviour of a particular dog should be based on that individual dogs attributes not its breed
5. As a breed, greyhounds are known for their generally friendly and gentle disposition, even despite their upbringing in the racing industry
6. Muzzling contributes to unwarranted negative public perceptions about greyhounds and their suitability as pets, impacting adoption opportunities
7. There is no evidence that shows that Breed Specific Legislation such as greyhounds wearing muzzles is effective in preventing or reducing dog attacks
8. The current 'prescribed training program' is called the Green Collar assessment. As with any behavioural assessment, it only can provide a snapshot of an animal's behaviour at a certain point in time. It doesn't recognise changes that may occur in a dogs behaviour over time, which could be influenced by variety of factors. Its implied assurance may discourage dog owner from ongoing responsibility for their pets behaviour developments
9. There is evidence that suggests that legislation that increases the responsibility of all dog owners, for example through higher fines, leads to a reduction in dog bites and increase in community safety

To Whom it May Concern

I wish to add my name to the campaign against greyhound muzzling. I have worked in the animal care sector for 38 years, first as a veterinary nurse and then as a lecturer in veterinary nursing and animal care, and have never encountered any problems with these dogs and their reactions towards people.

We have had rescued lurchers and greyhounds at home for the last 25 years (I was drawn to them from having worked so closely with them in veterinary practice and at rescue centres) and I have lived with (all sorts of) dogs my whole life. I can state wholeheartedly that with people greyhounds are the gentlest dogs.

Some may have a penchant for cats (including one of our own greyhounds), but those dogs should simply be on lead in public places and allowed off-lead in fenced off dog-only areas. Rescue organisations will easily identify those dogs and advise new owners appropriately. Many UK rescues already get new owners to sign to say those dogs will not be allowed off lead unless the conditions are safe. (NB I notice in Australia they have to be on leads anyway).

Muzzling greyhounds is absolutely unnecessary - please revoke this part of the Dog Act 1976. Muzzling gives a negative impression of what are the sweetest dogs.

I should be grateful if you would keep me informed about the progress of this issue.

Kind regards

Hello,

Greyhounds are super docile dogs that are not prone to biting and have tiny muzzles if they ever did bite. Please stop muzzling greyhounds - it's cruel and really going overboard. There are 100 synonyms to describe what muzzling a greyhound is and they're all in the realm of "over-egging the pudding", running riot, laying it on thick, etc... you get the drift. Shall we all walk around wearing helmets, protective eyewear and padding on the off chance of a freak accident?

I just heard about the law requiring the muzzling of greyhounds in public. I am writing to ask that the law be changed.

I have adopted three ex-racing greyhounds. They really are the most gentle dogs I have met, and I have been surrounded by dogs my entire life.

Muzzling is not necessary for anyone's safety. Further, seeing a dog muzzled gives the impression to others, who are not familiar with the breed, that they are a dangerous dog. This, in turn, makes it harder to adopt out these dogs who have been exploited and deserve a loving home.

I hope that this law will be re-evaluated, facts will be considered, and you will do the correct and compassionate thing and remove this ill-conceived law from the books.

I am scheduled to visit your part of the country next Spring and I was shocked to learn that this goes on there. Where I live there are lots of them as pets. I have encountered many in public and they are the gentlest dogs, grateful for attention and petting. This is cruel to require that they be muzzled as they are at very low risk to bite, the muzzles don't make it any safer for the public. And it greatly reduces the quality of life of these dogs who have already gone through so much restriction during their racing career.

I urge you to end this outdated law. I understand that muzzling is not supported by Australia's veterinary and humane associations, for good reason. Please do what you can to bring this practice to end.

Just like any other breed specific legislation or ban, it is unjust to judge a dog by its breed only. All animals should be judged by their individual temperament and behavior! And this should be done only if the situation presents itself for that individual dog. Please get rid of the requirement! It's a burden for the owner and the dog! With all that the greyhound was made to endure for the sake of greed, they still make loving, affectionate family members. At the very least, they should be able to take in all the interesting scents while on a walk that all dogs love to smell, WITHOUT a muzzle on their nose!
